A message from the Mayor...

From the time of the advent of the first ancient cities, their physical form has always been a reflection of communal life, and at the center of every settlement there has always been public space – the place that belong to everyone – the place where everyone gathers. It is the beating heart of every city.

Gloversville is fortunate to have its historic downtown largely intact, unspoiled by late 20th century sprawl. This walkable, Victorian urban center is now attracting enthusiastic private investment. Small entrepreneurs, experienced developers and creative artisans are recognizing the potential of Gloversville's classic urban core as a premier place to live, work and conduct business.

–Vincent Desantis, Mayor
